

Clare O'Halloran, "Better without the ladies"

Women and the Royal Irish Academy, 1785-1985. The lecture will look at the long-drawn out process of recognising the presence and achievements of women scholars by Ireland's foremost learned society.

Clare O'Halloran MA (UCD) PhD (Cantab) lectures in the History department at University College Cork. She co-edits the Irish Review, and her recent publications include Golden Ages and Barbarous Nations: Antiquarian Debate and Cultural Politics in Ireland, c.1750-1800 (2004).

Wednesday 9 March, 5pm,

Leuven Institute for Ireland in Europe (Janseniustraat 1, 3000 Leuven) The lecture is free of charge, all welcome. If you are planning to attend, please let us know:

receptionassistant1@leuveninstitute.eu